

SADC PARLIAMENTARY FORUM

SADC PF MODEL LAW PUBLIC FINANCIAL MANAGEMENT

DRAFT / EXPLANATORY NOTES ON THE MODEL LAW ON PUBLIC FINANCIAL MANAGEMENT ¹

1.0 Rationale and Objectives ²

It is considered necessary to prepare a Southern African Development Community (SADC) Model Law on Public Financial Management due to the existing legal and regulatory gaps in the current systems (see below).

The SADC Model Law on Public Financial Management will be adopted by the SADC Parliamentary Forum's Plenary Assembly and will serve as a benchmark and guiding legal instrument for national Parliaments to reinforce their domestic legal framework on public financial management. The Model Law will be incorporated by SADC Member States through amendments conducted to the Constitution, finance laws, regulations or the Standing Orders and Rules of the National Assembly, as may be necessary. ³

The overarching objective of the SADC Model Law is to ensure that SADC national Parliaments are enabled to conduct their legislative, budgetary and oversight functions for public financial management in a way that is transparent, efficient and responsive to the needs of SADC citizens. ⁴

Public financial management refers to the administration and supervision exercised over the finances of the State. It is a continual and ongoing activity. However, despite a general increase in economic growth perceived in 11 out of 15 SADC Member States over the period 2015-2018, there are major symptoms of economic frailty, excessive budget deficits, loss in purchasing power for citizens, and poor debt servicing across the SADC region. In 2018, Government debt in SADC as a percentage of GDP was the highest since the last 10 years. Additionally, in the period 2015-2018, reports of the Public Accounts Committees of more than

² Drafting Note: The "Rationale and Objectives" section in the ECM Notes is about 2.5 pages in length. This section has therefore been drafted to be of a similar length.

6 SADC countries indicated situations where public funds appropriated by Parliament may have been misused due to administrative lapses.⁵

This is reflective of root causes whereby Parliament as an institution is often unable to achieve its functions in public financial management efficiently, leading to: lack of prudential financial planning; lack of oversight in the procurement processes of the State; and possible wastages of public funds through corruptive practices.

There are several legal and regulatory gaps across the SADC region which undermine the functions of Parliament and therefore impede on sound public financial management. Those identified as currently existing across the SADC region are as follow:

- Narrow ambit of reports under scrutiny: In at least 5 SADC countries, the Public Accounts Committee examines only the report of the Director of Audit/Auditor General, and not the audit reports of other statutory bodies or public authorities.
- Lack of enforcement powers of the Public Accounts Committee: Moreover, in all SADC countries, it has been observed that Public Accounts Committees do not have sufficient enforcement powers pursuant to the examination of the report of the Director of Audit/Auditor General. In most cases, the report of the Public Accounts Committee is tabled in Parliament, without follow-up action.
- Lack of enforcement for regulation of public sector debt: In at least 4 SADC countries, there are laws or administrative guidelines on the management of public debt, with targets such as 50% of GDP, but without any penalty on Government if this debt target is not achieved. In more than 5 SADC countries, the laws and administrative guidelines on debt management and related targets as a percentage of GDP are unclear, if not inexistent. Moreover, the full details of existing public debt are often not disclosed in Parliament.
- Lack of performance-based budget with clear Key Performance Indicators: In nearly 6 SADC countries, the budget process is not related to clear performance indicators for Ministries and public departments. In other words, a performance-based budget will ensure that budgets are voted when Ministries/public departments comply with a set of pre-agreed performance indicators for the completed year in relation to set programmes.
- Disconnect between international commitments and budgeting: There is a general disconnect between commitments taken under treaties, declarations or covenants, and the actual budget passed in Parliament. For instance, it has been observed that SADC Member States' budgets mostly fail to reflect corrective action with regards to the following: the 90-90-90 targets to eradicate HIV/AIDS by 2030; the mainstreaming of gender through gender-based budgeting; and the implementation of Universal Health Coverage and the Sustainable Development Goals.
- Misuse of supplementary budgets: In at least 3 SADC countries, Supplementary budgets are passed in Parliament after the end of the financial year, and these budgets account for expenses which were made over and above the budget appropriated by Parliament for that year.
- No limit on quantum of public contracts entered into by the Executive: In at least 10 SADC countries, there is no limit on the quantum of public contracts which can be entered into by the Executive. This in effect means that, over the democratic tenure of Government (usually a 5-year term), the Executive is legitimately entitled to pass any contract irrespective of whether the policy was included in the electoral manifesto, or whether the contract will involve debt servicing on the long term, that is beyond 5 years.

The SADC Model Law is intended to trigger policy reforms and development or revision of substantive laws in SADC Member States as:

- it is a regional process shifting focus from national requirements to regional practice;
- it continues efforts already begun at national level and provides a well-researched model establishing a regional standard, against which efforts in Member States can be measured, that has been approved by Member States at a high level having, though not binding in itself, a binding effect on Member States; and
- it is dynamic as it makes it possible or easy to transpose or transplant its contents without much effort as it describes and explains its adopting or adapting process.

Member States should use this Model Law to develop their national laws as it creates a robust and uniform legal framework relating to public financial management.⁶

The SADC Model Law will assist policy makers and legislative drafters to address all the relevant areas in need of legislative reform without usurping the authority of national legislatures to determine the context, extent, style and form of their national laws. The following key users of the Model Law have been borne in mind when developing this Model Law:

- policy makers, when developing policies and strategies relating to better public financial management;
- legislative drafters, when drafting national laws on improving public financial management;
- lawmakers, when enacting legislation on improving public financial management;
- judicial officers, when interpreting the laws on, and related to, public financial management;
- researchers, when doing research on public financial management; and
- administrators, when applying and implementing the laws on and related to public financial management.

Most Parliaments of SADC Member States have constitutional competence to initiate through Members of Parliament or the Executive legislation for enactment by Parliament following set procedures as contained in national laws and standing orders or rules of the National Assembly. However, for the purposes of the SADC Model Law it is important that a close working relationship with the Executive is established to ease the process of successfully enacting the national legislation on this matter.⁷

⁷ Drafting Note: The content of these paragraphs and bulleted list is taken from page vi of the ECM Notes with some amendments to reflect the content of this Model Law. It is a work in progress and is to be expanded on.

The improvement of public financial management is of absolute importance if the SADC Parliamentary Forum (SADC PF) is to achieve their legislative intent. In December 2019 at its 46th Plenary Assembly, SADC PF unanimously approved a review of public financial management in SADC and development of a Model Law that would address relevant concerns.⁸

There are a number of challenges capable of obstructing the improvement of public financial management in SADC Member States, but the intention is that in creating an adequate and well-drafted legal and institutional framework to govern public financial management across the SADC, Member States will be assisted in overcoming these challenges.⁹

2.0 Related Laws

There are various pieces of legislation in Member States that may have a direct external relationship with a law on improving public financial management that will need to be cross-referenced effectively in the Bill when drafting the national law. There may also be a need to pass consequential amendments to existing laws to ensure consistency and harmony of the law. This will prevent ambiguity of the law and assist in the holistic and correct interpretation of the law.

Laws that will influence or impact upon the implementation of the Model Law include:

- provisions of the Constitution relating to aspects of public financial management;
- laws relating to taxation;
- laws relating to the regulation of financial institutions;
- laws relating to the regulation of the public service; and
- criminal justice and penal law.

The Constitutions of Member States also need to be taken into account when considering the content of national laws as the ultra/intra-vires rule will apply. The Bill of Rights and exercise of legislative power through the making of subsidiary legislation to operationalise the law must seriously be considered by Member States and the legislative drafter.¹⁰

3.0 Style and Form¹¹

The Model Law has been drafted using the precedent set by the SADC Law on Eradicating Child Marriage with minor adjustments for ease of communication in legislation and to facilitate the drafting of national legislation by the legislative drafter. Further, guidance notes, in the form of footnotes, have been inserted into the Model Law to guide the legislative drafter on specific issues.¹²

Drafting Note: The content of this paragraph is based on the content of the final paragraph in section 1.0 of the ECM Notes (page vii).

¹⁰ Drafting Note: The content of section 2.0 is taken from section 2.0 of the ECM Notes. It is a work in progress and will be expanded on.

¹¹ Drafting Note: The content of section 3.0 is taken from section 4.0 of the ECM Notes.

The Model Law, therefore, does not conform to individual Member States' form, style or structure of legislation, for example, it will not have a long title or short title. Member States will have to adapt the provisions of the law into appropriate national form, style and structure when adapting or adopting the contents of the Model Law as national laws.

The Model Law is formatted and structured using general conventional practices as reflected in previous SADC Model Laws. These conventional practices are designed to facilitate the communication of the extent of the law, Part or section of the law. The division of the Model Law into Parts enables similar or related provisions to be put together for comprehensibility but the Parts are supportive of each other thus making the Law a cohesive whole. The use of cross-referencing helps achieve the cohesiveness of the Law. These conventional practices have become quite uniform throughout the SADC Region, with only small variations.

4.0 Parts of the Model Law¹³

The Model Law addresses 15 main thematic areas, reflected in the Part headings, and sub-thematic areas, reflected in the sections and subsections, relation to the improvement of public financial management. The following are Parts of the Model Law:

These Parts are based on well-researched best practices.

DRAFT / MODEL LAW ON PUBLIC FINANCIAL MANAGEMENT

PREAMBLE

(Please draft according to the style of drafting legislation in the national jurisdiction, for example replace this Preamble with an Explanatory Memorandum or Memorandum of objects and reasons)

We, the members of the Southern African Development Community Parliamentary Forum:

Conscious that public financial management, which refers to the administration and supervision exercised over the finances of the State, is a continual and ongoing activity, with the Executive and Parliament complementing each other through checks and balances to ensure that financial tasks conducted by Government or its agents are efficient, are for the purpose intended in accordance with budget lines, and are predicated on transactions which reflect value for money;

Noting that despite a general increase in economic growth perceived in 11 out of 15 Southern African Development Community (“SADC”) Member States over the period 2015-2018, there are major symptoms of economic frailty, excessive budget deficits, loss in purchasing power for citizens, and poor debt servicing across the SADC region;

Noting in particular that in 2018, Government debt in SADC as a percentage of GDP was the highest for the previous 10 years as noted in the International Monetary Fund, Regional Economic Outlook Database for September 2019, albeit below 60%;

Noting additionally that in the period 2015-2018, reports of the Public Accounts Committees of more than 6 SADC countries indicate situations where public funds appropriated by Parliament may have been misused due to administrative lapses;

Concerned that this is reflective of root causes whereby Parliament as an institution is sometimes unable to achieve its functions in public financial management efficiently, leading to lack of prudential financial planning, lack of oversight in the procurement processes of the State, and possible wastages of public funds through corruptive practices;

Acknowledging that pursuant to the doctrine of separation of powers (as understood in international constitutional law) Parliament is the only institution which has sovereign authority to adopt the yearly public budget proposed by the Executive and to exercise oversight over proposed heads of expenditure at a Committee of Supply Stage or similar process in accordance with the Standing Orders and Rules of the National Assembly prior to their adoption by the National Assembly;

Noting that, in addition, most SADC Member States have subscribed to international commitments such as the implementation of the Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) inclusive of Universal Health Coverage, and gender-related treaties such as the African Charter on Human and Peoples' Rights, and its corresponding Protocol on the Rights of Women in Africa (the Maputo Protocol), the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights 1977 (ICCPR), the International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights 1977 (ICESCR), and others, all of which international commitments need to be mainstreamed through the yearly budget appropriated by Parliament through the allocation of sufficient funds to ensure a progressive realisation of objectives and related targets;

Observing that since SADC countries apply a dualist doctrine (as recognised in international law) whereby treaties and covenants need to be domesticated by internal transposition processes through the Executive and the Legislature (Parliament) for them to have legal effect at the national level, international commitments taken need also be domesticated or incorporated through domestic legislation which is adopted by Parliament;

Observing, moreover, that Parliament ensures an oversight over enabling administrative processes which are conducted under authority of law to give effect to international commitments taken;

Observing that as a critical part of the role of Parliament in public financial management, the institution of Parliament interfaces with public financial management at several levels, including: oversight parliamentary questions by Parliamentarians (MPs) to interrogate executive action which involves use of public funds, for instance recruitment processes, building of infrastructure, creation of public institutions etc; taking cognisance of the Budget Speech read by the Minister of Finance which sets out the main economic, financial and fiscal measures for the incoming year, and taking stock of the Annexes to the Budget Speech which may contain further information on particular measures, the capital budget and information on economic variables such as public sector debt; adoption of the yearly budget through the Appropriation Act for the coming financial year, and adoption of the supplementary budget through a supplementary legislation after the end of the financial year; adoption of financial resolutions by Parliament immediately after reading of the Budget Speech for immediate changes in taxes and levies; debating on the Budget Speech and the economic, financial and fiscal measures contained therein; adoption of a Finance Act which is the legislation that gives legal effect to measures announced in the Budget, being the legislation that validates and subsumes financial resolutions made; examination of the Director of Audit or Auditor General's report on public expenses made by Government and public departments, through the Public Accounts Committee which is usually a Committee of Parliament; adoption of laws relating to sound financial management, such as revenue laws, legislation on financial reporting; laws on management of public debt, banking and non-banking financial services etc; review of regulations (secondary legislation) which are tabled in Parliament and which relate to public financial management; ensuring domestication of international commitments taken by Government, for instance the SDGs, UHC, or human rights treaties;

Noting in general that while this list of Parliamentary processes and mechanisms for scrutiny and oversight is non-exhaustive, there are also legal and regulatory gaps across the SADC region which undermine the above functions of Parliament and therefore impede on sound public financial management;

Concerned in particular about narrow ambit of reports under scrutiny of Public Accounts Committee, and that in at least 5 SADC countries, the Public Accounts Committee examines only the report of the Director of Audit or Auditor General, and not the audit reports of other statutory bodies or public authorities; this means that in case of mismanagement of public funds from such statutory bodies, it is the board of that statutory body which is required to take action, and this audit report is not tabled in Parliament although Parliament may be allocating funds to that statutory body or public authority through the yearly budget; and that in some instances, Parliament is not empowered to consider the audit reports of statutory bodies, whereas in other cases, Parliament is empowered to do so but the reports are not tabled for consideration; that it is estimated that in at least 10 SADC countries, there are statutory bodies or public authorities which have a public element (that is which depend at least partly on public funds) but which fall outside the ambit of the supervisory authority of Parliament, exercised through the Public Accounts Committee;

Concerned in particular about the lack of enforcement powers of the Public Accounts Committee, noting that in all SADC countries it has been observed that Public Accounts Committees do not have sufficient enforcement powers pursuant to the examination of the report of the Director of Audit or Auditor General; and that in most cases, the report of the Public Accounts Committee is tabled in Parliament, without follow-up action;

Concerned in particular about the lack of enforcement for regulation of public sector debt, and that, in at least 4 SADC countries, there are laws or administrative guidelines on the management of public debt, with targets such as 50% of GDP, but without any penalty on Government if this debt target is not achieved; and that in more than 5 SADC countries, the laws and administrative guidelines on debt management and related targets as a percentage of GDP are unclear, if not inexistent; and noting moreover, the full details of existing public debt are often not disclosed in Parliament;

Concerned about the lack of performance-based budget with clear Key Performance Indicators (“KPIs”), noting that in some SADC countries, the budget process is not related to clear performance indicators for Ministries and public departments; without a performance-based budget which ensures that budgets are voted when Ministries or public departments comply with a set of pre-agreed performance indicators for the completed year in relation to set programmes; noting that KPIs can both be quantitative and qualitative, for instance number of complaints dealt with by a public authority, the number of children passing primary school examinations for a public school, or whether research of an agricultural department has yielded a constructive result; noting that if in some countries, KPIs do exist, there is little evidence that they are strictly adhered to; noting that performance-based budget established over the medium term (budget for next year and forecast for 2 additional years) with clear KPIs will promote predictability in the management of public finance and ensure proper financial planning by Government;

Concerned about disconnect between international commitments and budgeting, in the form of a general disconnect between commitments taken under treaties, declarations or covenants, and the actual budget passed in Parliament; noting, for instance, that it has been observed that SADC Member States’ budgets mostly fail to reflect corrective action with regards to the following: the 90-90-90 targets to eradicate HIV / AIDS by 2030; the mainstreaming of gender through gender-based budgeting; the implementation of Universal Health Coverage and the Sustainable Development Goals; the implementation of regional strategies such as the SADC SRHR Regional Strategy (2019-2030) or the SADC Regional Strategy for HIV Prevention, Treatment and Care and SRHR among Key Populations (2018); implementation of regional objectives such Africa Agenda 2063, and provisions contained in human rights treaties such as those providing for the right to health and housing;

Concerned about the misuse of supplementary budgets, with in some SADC countries supplementary budgets being passed in Parliament after the end of the financial year to account for expenses which were made over and above the budget appropriated by Parliament for that year; acknowledging that whereas supplementary budgets are necessary due to new circumstances occasioned during the completed year (for instance draughts or cyclones), it should not become a cause for improper financial planning; noting that it has often been observed that supplementary budgets are abusive in nature and relate to expenses which could have been anticipated through proper budget management;

Determined that SADC countries should be enabled to operate effective rule of law systems in accordance with public financial management is fully insulated from political considerations and protected from corruption of any kind;

Concerned that there is in some cases no limit on quantum of public contracts entered into by the Executive, with there being, in at least 10 SADC countries, no limit on the quantum of public contracts which can be entered into by the Executive, which means in effect that, over the democratic tenure of Government (usually a 5-year term), the Executive is legitimately entitled to pass any contract irrespective of whether the policy was included in the electoral manifesto, or whether the contract will involve debt servicing on the long term, that is beyond 5 years; and this unregulated prerogative to use public funds may lead to a situation where one Government binds the next beyond 5 years, therefore leading to a breach in democratic principles which are at the very foundation of the State; and that there is therefore a need for Parliament to exercise oversight and control over public contracts to ensure long-term sustainability in financial management;

Noting that the matters listed above set the parameters for the objectives of a SADC Model Law on Public Financial Management;

Determining that due to the existing legal and regulatory gaps, it is deemed necessary to prepare a SADC Model Law on Public Financial Management, to be adopted by the SADC Parliamentary Forum's Plenary Assembly, to serve as a benchmark and guiding legal instrument for national Parliaments to reinforce their domestic legal framework on public financial management; intending that the Model Law will be incorporated by SADC Member States through amendments conducted to the Constitution, finance laws, regulations or the Standing Orders and Rules of the National Assembly, as may be necessary;

Intending that the overarching objective of the SADC Model will be to ensure that SADC national parliaments are enabled to conduct their legislative, budgetary and oversight functions for public financial management to be transparent, efficient and responsive to the needs of SADC citizens;

Believing that the public financial management process should be predicated on the following principles:

The Transparency Principle: That information about the public financial management process should be made available to the public in a clear form and in a useful time frame (including fiscal transparency);

The Accountability and Participation Principle: That—

(a) Government and other public bodies should be accountable in their exercise of public financial management functions, and

(b) there should be formal and meaningful opportunities for the public – including members and representatives of marginalised and disadvantaged groups generally (having regard, in particular, to gender equality and women's empowerment and to the needs of persons with disabilities) – to engage in the national budget process and other aspects of public financial management in accordance with principles of participatory democracy;

The Oversight Principle: That oversight institutions including Parliament, the National Audit Office, and other bodies with regulatory functions in relation to public finance should have the resources, powers and processes to provide effective independent oversight of the Government's financial management;

The Responsibility Principle: That public officials and bodies exercising functions in connection with public financial management should have regard to their responsibility to exercise those functions in the public interest; and

The Sustainability Principle: That Government and other public bodies should aim to contribute to and protect the financial stability of the State;

Believing that the public financial management process should also be predicated on a requirement for public authorities with public financial management functions (including functions relating to issuing and maintaining regulations and guidance) to have regard to the public financial management principles in the exercise of their functions, as well as having regard to the following values underpinning the public financial management system:

Integrity;

Independence and impartiality;

Equity;

Professionalism; and

Transparency, accountability and responsiveness;

Proposing that the specific objectives and expected outcomes of the SADC Model Law will include the following: to provide for Parliament to pass Performance-based budgets which are related to programmes and corresponding KPIs; to ensure that all statutory bodies and public authorities file their annual audit report / audited financial statements to Parliament; to provide for the empowerment of Public Accounts Committees, so that they can review / examine all reports of statutory bodies/public authorities, in addition to the Report of the Director of Audit / Auditor General, and have qualified enforcement powers with regards to the recommendations made; in particular, empowering the Public Accounts Committee to report issues through its Secretariat to relevant authorities such as the anti-corruption agency, or the public services commission, and in case of such a report, it shall be mandatory for the recipient authority to report back on action taken; to provide that Parliament, through a dedicated Public Financial Parliamentary Committee, is empowered to monitor public debt, and call public officials for explanations in case the debt ceiling is exceeded (noting, moreover, that the Model Law will provide for legal provisions to govern the management of public debt towards a target of 50% of GDP, failing which officials of the relevant Ministry / public authority will be called to account); to ensure that supplementary budgets which appear to be abusive to a quorum of the Public Financial Parliamentary Committee, should be scrutinised in detail and reported upon to Parliament sitting in Plenary; to ensure that international commitments such as the SDGs, UHC or gender-based budgeting are mainstreamed by Ministries and public departments into the budget, and that related KPIs be developed accordingly (noting that there is an urgent need to ensure a progressive prioritisation of UHC with worldwide health concerns recently identified, such as the COVID-19 outbreak which is likely to upset financial markets and strain heavily the financing of public health care systems, and that unless there is efficient public financial management, SADC Member States are likely to take years to recover from unstable public finances and economic recession); to provide a framework whereby Parliament is called upon to ratify public contracts which exceed 3% of GDP by a qualified majority (eg three-quarters), in case such public contracts do not appear in the electoral manifesto of the Government of the day.

Noting that the SADC Parliamentary Forum (“the Forum”) at its 46th Plenary Assembly unanimously approved a review of public financial management in SADC and development of a Model Law that would address relevant concerns;

Knowing that model legislation builds on best practices and serves as a guide, yardstick and an advocacy tool for legislators, administrators, policy makers, civil society, adjudicators and other concerned stakeholders;

Noting that the Forum has developed previous Model Laws including the SADC Model Law on HIV in Southern Africa (2008), the SADC Model Law on Eradicating Child Marriage and Protecting Children Already in Marriage (2016), and the SADC Model Law on Elections (2018). A Model Law on the Prevention of Gender-based violence is currently under preparation;

Intending that the SADC Model Law on Public Financial Management will constitute the next Model Law to be developed by the Forum in collaboration with its Member Parliaments; and noting that the Forum has a high-level parliamentary committee called the Regional Parliamentary Model Laws Oversight Committee (“RPMLOC”) which is an organ dedicated to the monitoring of the domestication of adopted Model Laws and related Forum policy; and

Noting that different Member States will wish to adopt and implement the SADC Model Law on Public Financial Management through different mechanisms reflecting different Parliamentary scrutiny and other practices, the status of existing laws about certain aspects of the matters addressed by the Model Law, different constitutional balances between primary and subordinate legislation and other factors relating to legislative and other choices and practices of different Member States, and in all respects reflecting and protecting the constitutional integrity and sovereignty of each SADC Member State;

Noting that each Member State will wish to integrate the provisions of the SADC Model Law with other domestic legislation, so as to ensure effective domestication and transposition (so that, for example, the financial misconduct offences of the SADC Model Law will be implemented by reference to the criminal law policy of each Member State as to penalties, the use of unaccounted wealth investigations, and other matters relevant to effective implementation):—

Adopt the following Model Law on the regulation of the management of public finances as a guide to legislative efforts on the matter and urge Member States to adopt measures and interventions, including the review of their laws, to implement provision for the regulation of the management of public finances, in accordance with this Model Law:

An Act to make provision for the regulation of the management of public finances in accordance with applicable principles including accountability, transparency and modernity.
